

Biographies and Memoirs: Top 100 Biographies and Memoirs

Biographies & Memoirs in Kindle! Why do we really study the lives of those around us and of ourselves? Personal discovery and adventure? Victory and agony? Suspense in those around us? Chaos in our own lives? Or the fact that its all actually happening as we see it! It is almost impossible to classify and quantify the elasticity and depth of our imagination. What is certain, however, is that we constantly strive for inspiration and entertainment on a variety of levels. We can see life and death and triumph and defeat, depending on the perspective, whenever we want with the study of our own lives. Its the gift that keeps on giving.

Life becomes more interesting when it is nuanced by our creativity and there are no limits to this. So where does one go for inspiration? We turn to books, films, and television for the most part. What is interesting about books, separating them from all other forms of media, is the very intimate connection you make with a book and its characters. When you watch a film or television show you are seeing actors portraying characters, which have been cast a long and mostly political process playing the roles of characters that typically were born in the pages of novels or folklore. You are seeing a small committee of people portraying characters that were chosen by a small bureaucratic committee of people. This is too far removed from the source to have the feel that the original authors wanted you to experience. A book is much different. You form a close connection and bond with the characters you read about in your mind creates the most perfect embodiment of that character based on your history, past experiences, and imagination. A film or television series will never be as good as the book that youve read for the simple fact that your mind merges with the words as they come off the page, being interpreted exactly in the best way for your brain to configure. The following titles are a smattering of Biographies and Memoirs from all across the spectrum, and they're all interesting and unique for a variety of reasons. If you haven't read at least half of these books . . . You need to! They will broaden your horizons, open your eyes, scare you, excite you, and take you on adventures. We challenge you to read at least half of these books within the next 12 months. Join our world of heroes, victories, epic defeats, heart crushing matches, Love, loss, pain, rebuilding . . . the study of how we live, and lived. To read a biography is to read the true nature of us. How we interpret life is directly a result of our chemistry and programming. And we all want to make the most of our lives, whether we can clearly admit that or not. We want for self improvement . . . for discover and direction. So let's have some fun! The following books are not in sequential order and have been purposely rearranged to get people out of the mindset of first-page hunting. Click the links, enjoy the books, let's open up our minds tonight!
