In 1835. 114 crows. In 1810, bounty continued for 60 dam only. 1 Esq. Stiles.! E. Edwards Diaries. wild Turkeys--Wild Ducks.--The original country here is said to have been the habitat (or natural residence) of the wild turkey. John Barker killed one, about the year 1790, weighing 18 lbs. dressed. Theodore Barker tamed some between 1785-90.1 Archelaus Cummings also had a flock of tamed ones.2 He kept a small bell on the cock-turkeys neck, for a sign to the rest: thus managed, they would take to the woods with instinctive zeal, but return again. To catch wild turkeys, grain of some sort was the bait employed.1 In 1858, James Heald killed three wild ducks in Killams pond at one shot. Wild Pigeons--Eagles.--Some years have brought great numbers of the wild pigeon among us; other years hardly any at all. Immense was the emigration in the spring of 1817.3 The sky was clouded from mountain to mountain.3 When walking in the woods, you thought surely it thundered; a flock of pigeons had started up.4 No shot was wasted; pebble-stones would bring down three at a time, and Herman Batchelder lowered six with a single charge of plugs (or small bits of wood) on one occasion.3 You may look for these either in spring or fall, though some stragglers remain at other seasons. Eagles are caught or killed very rarely. One was caught in a fox-trap, in December, 1820, whose quills were 19 inches long.3 Other Animals.--Hedgehogs, conies, spotted rabbits, squirrels, red, grey, black and chippering, sables, (at an early date) woodchucks, weasels, black snakes, ...
