

Integrating the Twelve Steps with Medication-Assisted Treatment for Opioid Use Disorder: Best Practices for Professionals: Implementation Guide

In 2012, in response to the opioid epidemic in the United States, the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation launched a new treatment protocol designed to address the specific needs of patients with opioid use disorders. The new protocol, Comprehensive Opioid Response with the Twelve Steps (COR-12(TM)), embraces the latest and best research, which indicates that certain medications can be used to improve treatment engagement and future recovery outcomes for people with opioid use disorders. The use of medications has been integrated with the evidence-based, world-class Twelve Step facilitation model to form the foundation of a unique approach that provides long-term, wrap-around services individualised to the needs of patients with opioid use disorders. Integrating the Twelve Steps with Medication-Assisted Treatment for Opioid Use Disorder guides administrators, clinicians, doctors, and nurses in implementing this groundbreaking program at residential and outpatient facilities. Following the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation experience from admission through treatment and recovery services, it shares best practices for helping patients achieve a stable recovery lifestyle with the ultimate goal of abstinence. Topics include: * Opioid basics. * The research and principles behind medication-assisted treatment. * Launching the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundations COR-12 program. * Implementing the COR-12 program, from the early residential pre-admission stage through continuing care and lifelong recovery. Included is a CD-ROM with reproducible patient and family resources, as well as clinical and medical guidelines that support evidence-based research on medication-assisted treatment, Twelve Step facilitation, motivational enhancement therapy, cognitive-behavioural therapy, and the stages of change. The accompanying DVD follows the Hazelden Betty Ford

Foundation patient experience from admission to recovery services, with interviews and highlights of the COR-12 program for medical staff.
