

The Cyclopaedia of Social Usage: Manners and Customs of the Twentieth Century (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Cyclopaedia of Social Usage: Manners and Customs of the Twentieth Century

The more elaborate phrases, once used for this ceremony, have fallen out of fashion. To-day we say: Mrs. Brown, allow me to present Mr. Robinson, or, with even less formality: Mrs. Brown, Mr. Robinson. When making an introduction, names should be enunciated clearly, and, in both forms given above, the rule followed is that of presenting the man to the woman. The mention of Mrs. Browns name first, in the second of the two forms, implies this distinction, which the gentler sex almost invariably enjoys. Exceptions to this rule rarely occur. However, a very young lady, whether married or single, might be presented to an elderly and distinguished gentleman. It would be eminently correct to introduce Miss Brown to Senator Jones, to Justice R., to Admiral A., or General T. But these gentlemen must all be introduced to a matron, or to a lady past her debutanteship. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
