

They Didnt Get Me

A baby girl born into a family with a medical condition. The family treated her as one of them until they learned of her medical condition. They then stopped treating her as a normal human being and started treating her as an outcast. How do you treat a physically challenged girl in her growing years? Does this family know the importance of treating everyone as they wish to be treated? This physical challenged girl had no other choice in dealing in the manner that she did to survive living her life as a normal human being. How she wanted them, and everyone else to treat her normally, and they couldn't. How she overcame all of the things that were in her way and still here for more. I'm that physically challenged lady, as I like to call myself, which means that my physical being challenges me. In my case, I'm in a wheelchair and not able to do some things. I'm outgoing, adventurous and love challenges. I won't let anything or anyone stop me. I'm a Christian enjoying the life that the Lord has given me.
