

Lessons Earned: Boilers

This is the first in a series focusing on the HVAC/ construction business. This is a compilation of decades of experiences from dozens of individuals and firms that represents all aspects of the boiler construction business. Some of these projects did not avoid the hard knocks described. The series includes illustrations, drawings, and photographs. The publication covers all types of boilers from residential-scale through large institutional high pressure steam, hot water and high temperature hot water systems. Fire tube, water tube and cast iron boilers are discussed. Whether you are faced with an older boiler system or a recently constructed system that doesn't function as designed, or if you are dealing with a boiler concept, problem solving involves implementing a logical thought process, and is explained in detail, as it applies to boilers.
