

Books, Media and the Internet: Childrens Literature for Todays Classroom

As editors of Books, Media, and the Internet, David Booth, Carol Jupiter, and Shelley S. Peterson present the work of colleagues from the conference A Place for Childrens Literature in the New Literacies Classrooms, April 2008. Within these pages, teachers, librarians, and others concerned with literacy will find inspiration and strategies for melding technology and childrens literature from practitioners who have found effective ways to engage young people with text, both in print and on screen. The contributors to this anthology include classroom teachers, librarians, university educators, and journalists. They speak not only to the technologically capable and media-savvy teachers but also to the curious, who seek starting points for using new technologies alongside traditional print media in their classrooms. They show how multimedia and digital technologies expand our approaches to literacy education -- and how to extend and enrich our use of stories, whatever the media, with all ages. Their articles cover a vast range of subjects arranged into 5 sections. This book provides current information, classroom examples, and anecdotes as practical tools to help teachers use digital, media, and print texts to extend students learning. The helpful Teaching Tools section at the end of the book explains how to use a variety of digital tools in the classroom.
