

In The Middle Of The Night

This book is formatted to be viewed in horizontal format to give larger and more colorful pictures. Aubrey finds his mother's cell phone in his room and decides to call everyone in the contacts list. When he doesn't have a number he uses the phone book. He calls all his relatives, friends and people he knows. This is a cute story with beautiful color illustrations that younger children as well as older ones will enjoy. The book is published to be viewed horizontally for a larger more colorful image. Andrew Gutu did a remarkable job on the illustrations. This book is written by a Home School father and is based on a true story that happened with a young man that has Prader Willi Syndrome and Autism. Thank you so much for viewing and purchasing In The Middle Of The Night. Chris Capps is a father and author living in the beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. He is a husband, father of 2 remarkable children and a homeschool teacher. This book is based on an event that happened with his son who has Prader Willi Syndrome and Autism. Every day with children has many new challenges and blessings for Chris and his family. Andrew Gutu, a good friend, is from Moldova a small town in Eastern Europe. He fortunately accepted the invitation to collaborate on a book. His main activity is photo editing but found the job of illustrating very rewarding. His art is interesting and adults as well as children will enjoy the pictures that he has created here.
