Excerpt from Certain Mounds and Village Sites in Ohio, Vol. 3: The Feurt Mounds and Village Sites
The Feurt Mounds and Village Site are situated about five miles north of the city of Portsmouth, on the east side of the Scioto river, in Clay township. Scioto county, Ohio. The land upon which this group of mounds and the village site is located is a part of the estate of Mr. William C. Feurt. which consists of more than 400 acres of rich bottom lands and sloping hill sides, and is considered one of the most productive and well-kept farms along the Scioto. Mr. Feurt, who gives personal attention to his farm, lives in a commodious and stately mansion, constructed in an early day by his father and added to, as required, by the son until today it stands among the most beautiful farm residences in the Scioto valley. The immediate location of the mounds and village site is a level plateau of less than five acres in extent, elevated a little more than forty feet above the bottom land into which it projects, promontory like, with steep and very abrupt banks. Looking south from the site of this village upon the broad and beautiful valley of the Scioto. and westward across the river valley to the foothills, where is located the Tremper Mound, one is impressed with the fact that early man in the Ohio valley took advantage of natural surroundings in selecting a site for his home. The original top soil of this plateau was a clay loam of several feet in thickness, underlaid with gravel. The present top soil is from six inches to four feet above the original surface, as a result of the custom of the inhabitants of the village in carrying soil from the sides of the abrupt bank and covering up the accumulated debris in and around their tepee sites. When these places were uncovered, the story of the primitive peoples, who doubtless for a long period of time made this site their home, was revealed. About the Publisher Forgotten
