

The Passover Saga

The Passover Saga -double fiction series: Hebrews interacting with Moses and Pharaoh (1500 BC); each chapter followed by fictional sessions of a University study group (2000 AD), led by an Egyptology Professor during which extra-biblical artifacts are cited, verifying the Bible (over 100 distinct confirmations, over 80%). Many recent discoveries: an Egyptian statue of Pharaoh Vizier Imhotep (white-skinned, European) who saved Egypt from seven years of famine, hoarding surplus grain from seven plentiful years (biblical Joseph); archaeological digs of Semitic slaves living for generations in Goshen (Nile delta), their hasty, mass departure; Egyptian scrolls describing decimating plagues; an amazing letter from Pharaoh's widow to the Hittite King, speaking to both the Tenth Plague and drownings of Pharaoh and his chariot army; newly discovered undersea coral-covered Egyptian chariot wheels in Gulf of Aqaba with bones of men and horses; an astounding, gigantic cleft rock (Moses striking for water); and a mountain, exactly describing Mt. Sinai (even molten-rock top). With Amarna letters of Kings Saul, David and Solomon, the aggregate of artifacts argue the most plausible conclusion by fact and logic the Bible stories seem to be true.
