

The Best Amusement Parks are in Southern California

If you are one who loves theme parks and amusement parks, Southern California is heaven on earth--even if you don't care about the great beaches and other destinations. There are seven world-class parks within about 3 hours on the freeway. Which ones are for you? Are you a thrill ride seeker? Do you have small children along on the trip? How long do you need to do justice to the parks--one day each? Two days? Wouldn't it be nice for a local expert to give you not only great practical information about these wonderful parks, but also insight that comes only from living in Southern California for decades? That's where the SoCal Vacation Guru comes in. This book is taken from the Gurus website. But rather than having access only when there is internet availability, it is at your fingertips on your Kindle reader. Rather than waiting for downloads, you can smoothly investigate all of the in-depth wisdom and scuttlebutt anywhere. Then, if you choose, you can hit the internet and engage in further research on the website itself, using this book as your guide. The Best Amusement Parks starts out with a brief overview of the parks, with brief comparisons and suggestions for planning your trip. Subsequent chapters tell you what you need to know so as to wisely choose what you do and don't want to fit into your limited vacation schedule. The book then starts at the top, with a section on Disneyland Resort in Anaheim. There you'll find information and wisdom for navigating the Magic Kingdom, as well as Disney's California Adventure, which has been in an uproar for a couple of years with the major billion-dollar renovation. After Disneyland, we move to Knott's Berry Farm, with its unlikely but wildly successful combination of crazy thrill rides and Snoopy and the Peanuts gang. Something for everyone; the book includes information about the Knott's Scary Farm Halloween Haunt, one of its most successful events. After the Orange County parks, the book moves north up the freeway to Universal Studios Hollywood and then Six Flags Magic Mountain (the other reigning thrill ride destination). Then we move south to San Diego County for Sea World and Legoland. There is information on restaurants, hotels and other useful material to help make the most of your Southern California vacation.
