

Women Librarians in India: A Study in Work-Life Balance

The satisfactory functioning of library and information services depends to a large extent on an adequate, able, and motivated staff. This book uses statistical methods to study the job satisfaction level of the women librarians working in India. The findings of this investigation will enable library managers to recognize the areas of satisfaction and dissatisfaction among India's women library professionals. These findings will yield a better understanding of the problems of women professionals and will help managers to make apt decisions for the future growth of their organization.
