

So, About That... A Year Of Contemporary Essays on Race and Pop Culture

A Compilation of Essays on the Biggest Stories in Race and Pop Culture... From Ferguson, the movement that mobilized a generation, to Rachel Dolezal, the woman who had everyone questioning what it means to REALLY be Black, this book will examine the broader concepts behind issues of race and pop culture in today's society. How does racism affect our daily lives? How does it affect the media that we consume, or the way that we consume it? How do we REALLY feel about race? It all starts with a simple question... So, about that?
