

Memories of School

This story was created during the author and writers period of teaching in Hertfordshire, and release to take part in a years course of study at the London University of Education, tutor Margaret Meek (Spencer), May 1986. The longitudinal study and long report took place in a traditional Welwyn Garden City state primary school in Hertfordshire. Aspects of observational, numerical and literary skills are incorporated in the text and illustrations. This story was dedicated to the two case studies and their peers. The poetic story and illustrations form a historic account of pre-national curriculum, early days of information technology in schools at that time. Many adults (parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles especially) reading or browsing through this first story may recall experiencing aspects of the school day reflected and this could be a talking point between them and the young reader.
