Excerpt from Season at Harwich: With Excursions by Land and Water to Which, to Which Is Added Researches, Historical, Nature, and Miscellaneous

The first historical account of Harwich and Dovercourt, that we have any knowledge of, was compiled about the year 1732, by Mr. Samuel Dale, who took for the foundation of his work the MS. notes of an author whom he thus introduces to the public:-This MS. of collections was made about the year 1676, by one Mr. Silas Domville, alias Taylor, keeper of the Kings Stores at Harwich, not long before his death; this his curiosity might prompt him to, he living at the place, and being a lover of antiquities, a person of leisure, and a member of the Corporation, whereby he had access to the books and records, both of the church and borough. Whether he designed ever to publish these his collection, or only writ them for the satisfaction of himself and friends, is to me unknown : but whatever were his intentions, they were prevented by the thread of his life being, not long after, cut off; and dying in debt, all his MSS. and papers were, together with his goods, seized on by his creditors, and so dispersed. This MS. coming into my hands some years after, through the favour of a friend, the curiosity of it made me desirous of copying it, not only as it related to a place in the county in which I was an inhabitant, but also because I had before been divers times at the place, to observe the natural curiosities thereof, but especially the cliff, whose various imbedded fossils I had there discovered; the first invention of which the late Dr. Woodward in public company attributed to me. Afterwards, whatever I found in my reading. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
