

Sketches of the History of Man, Vol. 4 of 4 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Sketches of the History of Man, Vol. 4 of 4 I begin with the principles of morality, such as ought to govern at all times, and in all nations. The present sketch accordingly is divided into two parts. In the first, the principles are unfolded; and the second is altogether historical. The hand of God is no where more visible, than in the nice adjustment of our internal frame to our situation in this world. An animal is endued with a power of self-motion ; and in performing animal functions, requires no external aid. This in particular is the case of man, the noblest of terrestrial beings. His heart beats, his blood circulates, his stomach digests, evacuations proceed, &c. &c. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
