

Things I Learned from 18 Years Camping at the Oregon Country Fair: (Unofficial Tips for Camping, Surviving, Performing, etc.)

This book is written to help people who are going to the Oregon Country Fair, (OCF) outside of Eugene, OR, in July every year. Often the fair is confusing to those who have not been to it, and the organization of the parking, camping, pass structure, etc. can be overwhelming. This book simplifies the basics of the fair for both day trippers and those planning on camping inside the fair as part of the fair family. Author Kirsten Anderberg has performed at the OCF for nearly 2 decades (often as the memorable Mother Zosima character and often as a single mother herself) and offers advice about what to bring to the fair, how to navigate some of its rough edges, etc. Sections of this book include advice on surviving heat, rain and mosquitoes as well as information about bathrooms, parking, camping, food, children at the fair, alter-abled access, dogs, and more. Includes a small section by K. Anderberg about her own fair experiences.
