

A List of Books on the History of Science: Supplement December, 1916 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A List of Books on the History of Science: Supplement December, 1916
The List of Books on the History of Science, which was issued in 1911, recorded the books available in January of that year, numbering some 1500 titles. Since then, however, a large amount of material on this subject has been received and not a few have been catalogued from the Gerritsen and Senn collections. This addition has been large enough to make it worth while to issue a Supplement to the previous list, and it is hereby offered as the twelfth of the Library's bibliographic publications. It contains nearly 800 titles. In 1915 a List of Books on the History of Industry and Industrial Arts, comprising about 3300 titles, was issued as the eleventh publication. These three lists bring together a large and important class of books the titles of which are widely scattered through the classed catalogue and not readily available there as a class. The present list has the same scope and character as the first; it covers the social, physical, natural and medical Sciences, while their technical applications are covered in the list on the history of industry. It deals with the history of the sciences; it does not deal with the history of movements or activities. The history of economic, for instance, is included here, while economic history is included in the List of Books on the History of Industry. In the preface to the earlier volume quotations were made from writings of some historians of science. To this it seems fitting to add, as apropos of the times, two Statements by two well known scientists, the one a German, the other a Belgian. The former discusses the comparative value of what is known as general history and the history of science, the second refers in a way that seems almost pathetic, to the relation of science to peace, and of scientists to internationalism. In one of Julius Pagels monographs on Henri de Mondeville we read the following: Different from the general history of world events is the history of science.
