

Formal Combats in the Fourteenth Century

Formal Combats in the Fourteenth Century presents the lifetime of scholarship by respected professor Steven Muhlberger in an accessible format that will engage both scholars and amateur enthusiasts alike. Adapted from various scholarly addresses over Muhlbergers career, each chapter represents a different element of formal combat. Muhlberger presents formal combats as neither senseless violence, nor stylized maneuvering, but rather as controlled violence with deep personal and political implications. He examines formal combats both among nobles and non-nobles, questioning what these deeds meant practically, culturally, and morally.

Part 1: Non-noble Deeds of Arms in the Late Middle Ages
Part 2: Chivalric Deeds of Arms As Politics
Part 3: The Moral Calculations Behind Medieval Deeds of Arms
