

Ciao From Roma! Spring in the Eternal City of Love

Reading Jerry Ellis Ciao From Roma! I learned much about my own culture and myself that I might not have perceived otherwise. I dare say that through Jerry I have grasped important elements of being human, not the least of which is living with an open heart and mind. He embraces life, people and his prose with such passion and sensitivity that it inspires. Ciao From Roma! is a testament to his contagious love of others that few can resist. In an Age where most people hide their feelings from fear of being hurt, his soul stands naked in The Garden of the Clothed that we might find the courage to free ourselves to become the spiritual giants that our Creator surely desires. Ciao From Roma! captures the stories, festivity, romance and sensuality of Rome with such compelling insight and at times with sublime humor that I found myself falling in love with the city all over again. The history and customs of ancient Rome that are sprinkled throughout the narrative, like diamonds glowing in the dark, not only enlighten but entertain. Even the most humble characters in this spring adventure in Rome become bigger than life, and long before you reach the last page you will want to take all of them home. Jerry has written for The New York Times and had four books published by Random House. Cherokee, he was the first person in the modern world to walk the 900 mile route of the Trail of Tears. His book about that journey, Walking the Trail, was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize and a National Book Award. Paolo Canova, Italian poet and philosopher.
