

The International Numismata Orientalia: Coins of the Urtuki Turkumans (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The International Numismata Orientalia: Coins of the Urtuki Turkumans It is to be understood that, in this collection of memoirs, authors have the entire credit, and are in the same degree responsible for their own contributions. In the present article, the author has throughout maintained his right of freedom from editorial control. The leading difference, however, has only extended to the severity of the treatment of a subject which the Editor desired to have cast into a more popular form. A concession has been made in the appended Table of Alphabets to the demands of the contributors to purely Arabic Numismatics, who hesitated to accept the less elaborate Persian system of transliteration suggested by the Editor in the opening Essay: and, at the same time, advantage has been taken of the opportunity to improve some of the minor details of the latter scheme, so as to bring it more into harmony with the newly adapted Arabic compromise, especially in regard to the group of letters which will now be ranged in more complete unison with the fellow alphabet by the use of single dots below their corresponding Roman letters. As the retention of the old title of Marsden has been misunderstood on the one part, and found to be altogether out of place under the altered conditions of the present publication, the Editor has reverted to the more appropriate term of an International Edition of the Numismata Orientalia.
